

Dr. Leonard Axe to Deliver Talk at June 2 Commencement Exercises for Approximately 100 Graduates

Goldsmit Farce Delights Audience 'She Stoops to Conquer' Scores First-Night Hit

An enthusiastic crowd viewed the four-state premiere of "She Stoops to Conquer" last night in the College auditorium. Repeat performances will be given at 8:30 tonight and tomorrow night.

The eighteenth century situation comedy by Oliver Goldsmith centers around the life and activities of the Hardcastles, a country family aspiring to gain the social prestige of their city cousins. Confusion intrudes upon the erstwhile peaceful existence of the family when Tony Lumpkin, Mrs. Hardcastle's son by a previous marriage, pulls one of his tricks on Marlow, Kate Hardcastle's hand-picked lover. Tony tells Marlow that the Hardcastle home is an inn, which the Marlow party has been looking for.

Marlow and his companion, Hastings, make complete fools of themselves before they discover Tony's ruse. However, all ends well when Marlow wins Kate's favor and Mr. Hardcastle forgives both Marlow and Hastings for their impudence.

Authentic costumes and wigs imported from New York, and the use of the English accent and central staging, add to the excellent presentation.

Those heading the cast include Juco's established actor, Duane Hunt, as Mr. Hardcastle; Marilyn Harrison, who vividly portrays the social-climbing Mrs. Hardcastle; Sondra Gumm, who capably characterizes Kate Hardcastle; Murray Lorenzen, who enthusiastically enacts the part of Tony Lumpkin; Mrs. Hardcastle's oafish son; and Jim Lobbey, who portrays Marlow, Kate's dashing, young lover.

Others in the presentation include Frank Sadler as Hastings, Marlow's companion; Gwen Theis as Constance, Kate's best friend; Carol Campbell, Molly, the barmaid of the "Three Pigeons"; Jim Hunt, the comical portrayer of Diggory, a servant; Glen Meadows as Marlow's father, Sir Charles Marlow, Sr.; and Donna Martin as Dolly, Pete's personal maid.

Milton W. Brietzke, dramatics instructor at the College, served as the student director, is directing the play. Jim Hunt

Admission to the showing is 75 cents, or a student activity ticket.

Memoirs of J. J. C.

On a hot summer night, June 3, 1927, a mass meeting of the residents of Joplin was held in the Joplin High School auditorium. The topic — "Do we need a junior college in Joplin?" Proponents pointed out that a junior college would be an asset to the community, that it would attract ambitious out-of-town boys and girls. The Board of Education estimated tentative operating costs and repairs on the building at Fourth Street and Byers Avenue, which could be occupied by the Junior College, at $67,397.

We jump to the school year of 1937. Under the auspices of the University of Missouri, Joplin Junior College opened classes. We had no building, so sessions were held in the Senior High School.

In 1938, a movement was undertaken to remodel the old high school building at Fourth Street and Byers Avenue. Portions of an editorial from the Joplin Globe read: "Tuesday, voters of the School District of Joplin will be faced with the responsibility of deciding whether to approve or disapprove a proposed bond issue of $100,000, about half of which would be used for remodeling the old high school building."

The bond issue passed, and a new era in the educational history of Joplin began. College classes convened September 6, 1938, in the new building.

So the years went on. In 1939, the first issue of "The Chart of J.J.C. Activities" came off the press, a far cry from today's College newspaper. The yearbook came into being, and many extra-curricular activities sprang from various departments.

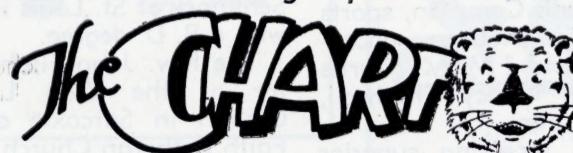

Through 1940 to 1945, the College grew, but the number of women students during World War II outnumbered the men three to one. Tributes to the Junior College's War dead appeared in many issues of The Chart.

March 30, 1949—a real landmark. The North Central Association of Colleges approved Joplin Junior College. Announcement of the acceptance came from Chicago, where Roi S. Wood, president of the College, and Dr. Harlan Bryant, the College Dean, attended the Association's conference.

The $50,000 Joplin citizens voted to spend on the Junior College proved a sound investment. For 20 years, students have roamed the halls of J.J.C., unmindful of the squeaking wooden floors and the plaster slipping from the walls and ceilings.

The old Senior High School affords more spacious rooms, gymnasium facilities, and a strongly constructed building for future College students.

Members of the 1957-58 Chart staff, along with hundreds of other students and alumni, pay tribute to the dilapidated halls of the College, which has served many so well. Fond memories, embedded in the heart, are reflected in the old building. But, we look to an ever-advancing Joplin Junior College.

Do You Want to Be an Elementary Teacher?

"What country am I pointing out?" asks Darlene Spillers as she instructs Mrs. Eva Croddy's fourth grade geography class at Irving Elementary School. Four other teacher-trainees are enacting similar scenes in other Joplin schools.

"The main value of a practice teaching course at the junior college level seems to be that it gives prospective teachers an opportunity to change their minds," comments Gerald M. Prater. The supervisor says, "Some people who have planned for years upon a teaching career find that the actuality is not at all what they anticipated." He emphasizes that the earlier they make this discovery the easier it is for them to prepare for some other field.

And so each day at 11 in the morning, five Junior College students hurry to Irving, East Central, or Royal Heights elementary schools. Shirley Byrd, Nancy Hopkins, Mrs. Lucille Kennedy, Mrs. Norma Johnston, and Darlene Spillers will probably know by the end of the semester whether or not they have been wise in the choice of a career.

The Irving school principal, who teaches some of the education courses here, stresses the point that prospective teachers must meet certain requirements before they may participate in the practice teaching program. In addition to completing required courses, they must spend much time in observation of actual teaching situations.

Observation begins after a two-week orientation period, at which students discuss such questions as "What is a good teacher?" After pinpointing criteria to observe, the students spend four days in noting activities in general, after which written reports are turned in.

The next step is specific observation. Two days are spent upon each of the first, second, third, and fourth grades. An additional two days are spent at either the fifth or sixth grade level.

Upon completion of five weeks of teaching, the student is re-assigned, this time to a fourth, or sixth grade class, where the process is repeated.

Only then are the students assigned to a first, second, or third grade class. After two weeks of observing her class, the neophyte reaches her goal. She is actually allowed to teach!

For five weeks she teaches an hour a day. At first, the regular teacher is present, but by the end of the five weeks the practice teacher is usually "on her own."

During their six actual weeks of teaching, students are under close, if not restraining, supervision. For example, each Friday a detailed outline of the work planned for the following week is presented, and must be approved before it can be put into effect.

This course is only one of the many required by the two-year Elementary Teacher Training curriculum. Upon successful completion of the work required it is possible to teach in the elementary schools. A minimum of 64 hours is required, but Instructor Prater notes that few schools will hire teachers without more hours.

He expresses the opinion that the student teacher plan has proved successful over the years, "that it is good training for those who really enjoy teaching, as well as a warning for those who find that teaching is not for them."

The Pains of Creativeness

It takes a very special kind of courage to be creative. When you create, whether it be as artist, composer, or writer, you are exposing a part of yourself to public censure, ridicule, scorn, or approval. The picture you paint, the play or story you write, the music you compose — these things will be judged by. Explanations, allowances, or rationalizations are futile. Your work succeeds or fails by its own merit.

And yet, the rewards of creation are well worth the price of exposure. It is no small thing to take your mind, your feelings, experiences, and attitudes, and shape them into something concrete. It is no small thing to know that without you, this thing created could never have been exactly as it is. Some Junior College students have had this experience. There is Duane Hunt, whose drama, "Survival at 3000," was recently premiered by the College Players and Hubert Bird who composed the between-acts music for "She Stoops to Conquer," with choreographers Jimmie Hunt and Donna Martin. These students have the nerve to be original.

They are certainly to be congratulated along with all others who dare to be creative. The risks are great but the rewards are proportionate.

Charlie Brown Speaks at J. J. C.

Charles Harrison Brown, representative to Congress from the Seventh Congressional District, spoke at a luncheon of the Young Democrats Club yesterday at the Y.M.C.A.

Brown, who recently announced he had filed for re-election, told a large group of Young Democrats, Young Republicans, and faculty members his plans for next year, if re-elected.

The native of Springfield outlined campaign platforms for the August primary elections. He explained his stand on current topics of importance to the Seventh District and the nation.

A former student at Drury College of Springfield and George Washington University of Washington, D. C., Brown was presented to the group by Lyle Redmon, president of the College Democrats.

Brown began his political activity April 4, 1956, when he was elected congressman from the Seventh district. He was the first Democrat to hold that office in 40 years.

Circle K Talent Show Prize Goes To Pantomime Pair

Bill Easley and Donna Martin won the top prize of ten dollars last week at the Circle K talent show. Their pantomime, "Teacher's Pet," was considered best by the judges of the 7 numbers presented.

George Payne conquered the third spot by his bugle renditions of "Charge," at last season's football games.

Other numbers included Larry Wilcoxon's piano medley, Fred Tullis and his spoons, Arthur Boles' neat soft shoe number, and James Willey's "Third Man Theme."

Master of Ceremonies Dick Baker introduced the numbers, adding some M. C. talent of his own.

Three Hold State Legislative Offices

Three students gained offices during the Inter-Collegiate Legislature held in Jefferson City April 18-19. They were Lyle Redmon, Senate Floor Leader, Mike Robbins, Reading Clerk of the House and Nancy Chadwell, chairman of the Republican caucus. These officers were decided upon in the caucuses held by the respective parties the first evening of the meetings. Also during the caucuses, the parties decided the fate of the six bills which were to be voted on the next day in the legislature.

Activities the first day included touring the Capitol, the State penitentiaries, the Governor's home, and offices of various departments of Missouri government. Before the caucuses met, a banquet was held in the Governor Hotel, with Lew Larkin, Capitol reporter for the Kansas City Star, speaking on "The Unpolitical Generation."

Saturday was the big day for the students. The groups met and proceeded to the House and Senate chambers where the greater part of the day was spent discussing, debating, and voting on the bills.

Those accompanying Redmon and Robbins on this trip were Political Science Instructor Arnold Irwin, Carol Campbell, Nancy Chadwell, Pat Van Hooser, Donna Engle, Larry Meacham, and Chuck Krokoski.

H. B. Davis Sets New State Record; Joplin Trackmen Grab Fourth in Meet

Clearing 21 feet, 2 inches, H. B. Davis set a new meet record in the broad jump during the annual Missouri State Junior College track and field championships held Friday, May 2, on the Wentworth Military Academy cinders at Lexington.

Franz Stangl also helped Joplin garner fourth in the meet by winning the javelin throw with a toss of 148 feet, 4 1/4 inches, and Bob Givens tied for first in the pole vault with a height of 10 feet, 2 inches.

Davis, a Carthage high school basketball and football star, bettered the old state junior college record of 20 feet, 11 1/2 inches set in 1956. The carrot-topped trackster also garnered third in the 100-yard dash with a time of 10.7 seconds, only one-tenth of a second slower than the winning time.

Other Juco entries garnered the following: Don Staggs, second in the shot put with 38 feet, 9 1/2 inches and third in the discus with 113 feet; Givens, tie for third in the high jump with 5 feet, 8 inches; Max Vowels, fourth in the 100-yard dash in the time of 10.8 seconds; Mike Howard, fifth in the 120-yard hurdles; Robert Watts, fifth in the 220-yard dash; Tony Watson, fifth in the mile run; 880-yard relay team of Staggs, Davis Vowels, and Watts, fourth.

Five other meet records were broken. Murphy of Southwest Baptist College won the 440-yard dash in 53.4 seconds over the previous record of 53.6 seconds set in 1956.

Six seconds were sliced off of the old mark in the 880-yard dash record of 2:09.5 established last year. Parra of

W. M. A. won the mile with a slow time of 4:42.1, which topped the meet record of 4:52.8 set in 1956. Wentworth's 880-yard relay team won the event in 1:35, which was two-tenths of a second better than the meet record set by Kemper last year.

The old mile relay mark of 3:44.7 set by Southwest Baptist in 1957 was smashed by Kemper with a time of 3:39.6.

W.M.A. captured its fourth consecutive state meet championship with a total of 74 1/2 points. Southwest Missouri Baptist College was second with 72. K.M.A. was third with 37 1/2 and Joplin followed with 34.

Sociology Class Tours Two Churches

The 2 o'clock sociology class visited St. Mary's Catholic Church last Monday and the Jewish Synagogue last Wednesday. Father Ingoldsby and Rabbi Latz instructed the students as to the beliefs, concepts, and symbolisms of the denominations.

The sociologists made the excursions in conjunction with their textbook study of religion. Mrs. Mary Kirk Kelley, sociology instructor, accompanied the students.
